HIS HEALTH GOOD

Broken Old Man at 60, Rockefeller Regained Enthusiasm, Health

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

ORMOND BEACH, Fla.—The quiet and mystery shrouding The Casements doesn't mean that there is anything wrong with John Davidson Rockefeller.

We have it from his local physician, Dr. J. N. Fogarty, and minister and former golfing partner, the Rev. George D. Owen, that the health of the oil tycoon is as good as could be expected of a man who is 97 Wednesday, July 8.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Rockefeller is better looking than he has been in years, in the opinion of his favorite photographer and others of his old golfing mates, Curt E. Engelbrecht, who explains that, closer confinement has restored the pink complexion of the nonagenarian's earlier years.

Mr. R., as he is referred to by members of his household, was such an inveterate outdoor man for so long that his parchment skin became somewhat weatherbeaten.

Misses "Dressing Up"
Age sitting with grace upon his visage must please Mr. R. in his seclusion. Mr. R. always preferred pictures that showed him to the greatest advantage. When "the world's richest man" and foremost philanthropist liked on particularly well he'd purchase as many as 150 and send them to friends.

Mr. R. isn't putting on street dress any more. It is improbable that another photograph will be taken of him in his best bib and tucker. He isn't donning a collar any more.

In his enforced solitude, those who until two years ago saw so much of Neighbor John suspect that he misses dressing more than any other one thing.

Mr. R. knew how to wear dinner clothes and liked them. He looked his best in them. He seemed to fully appreciate the pleasing air of dignity given him by the silk top hat, Prince Albert coat, and striped trousers he formerly donned for church. On Sunday evenings he was one of the best dressed men at concerts in the rambling hotel across the way from The Casements.

Airtiness Undimmed

Mr. R. knows how to grow older as well as he knows how to accumulate millions, and the few intimates who have seen him recently declare him to be as alert as ever.

The only reason why the high iron picket fence and the sentry boxes replaced the friendly hedge around The Casements was to make certain that the loving and meticulous care that is prolonging a useful life would be uninterrupted.

A broken old man at 60, suffering from dyspepsia, Mr. R. conquered infirmities by careful living.

It was in January, 1932, that Mr. R.'s physicians decided that—even more careful living would be necessary if the old gentleman was to attain his goal—100 years. They made this decision when a cold and over-exertion—for one of his age-caused Mr. R. to miss a winter Sunday at the Ormond Community church for the first time in two years, and to miss golf for three consecutive days.

Activities Curtailed
Gradually, Mr. R., who had frisked beneath the burden of four-score years and ten, cut down on his activities to meet the silent pace of sedentary years.

Nine holes of golf became eight, then seven, then six, and finally his golf for three consecutive days.

MUMFORDVILLE, Ky.—(Special)—Just outside the cave district, Mumfordsville is headquarters for basket-making, an art practiced by these hill people for generations. They're the best hand-made baskets in the world, and the people keep so busy making and selling them, most of them haven't time to hang around town trying to get on relief.

Took a 200-mile trip on the train, quite a novelty. The railroads must be making money as some of the trainmen are beginning to be discourteous to passengers again, why, you almost have to hold up your hand and snap your fingers to gain permission from the conductor to smoke a cigarette.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Reporting an increase in cotton planting in all states except Florida, the federal crop reporting board Wednesday estimated the area in cultivation July 1 to be 36,621,000 acres.

This is an increase of 9.8 per cent above the 27,888,000 acres for July 1 last year.

The greatest increase was west of the Mississippi river. Arkansas showed a 14 per cent increase, with 2,483,000 acres.

$131,911 Is Saved by Bond Refund Purchase

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The State Board Wednesday purchased $709,960 of outstanding highway, road district and toll bridge refunding bonds before maturity at an estimated saving of $131,911 to the taxpayers.

Although City Clerk T. R. Billingsley said that the board had filed no report with him on the stadium proposal, The Star's informant said that the board had made the recommendation with two provisions:

First, that the city take a lien on the stadium property, and second to take a lien on gate receipts, assuring that the city would be refunded the loan.

The council, however, has taken no official action on the stadium except to refer it to the Board of Public Affairs when the proposal was outlined by Coach Foy Hammons.

Couch Hammons said several days ago that the stadium had been approved by federal WPA authorities and that it was assured provided that the community's share of $2,500 could be raised.

Routine reports concluded the council meeting.

Police Failure to List All Arrests Hit by Aldermen

Council Resolution Requires Recording of All City Prisoners

MUSIC CLUBHOUSE

Petition for Community House—Action on Stadium Is Rumored

The city police department was flayed Tuesday night in a resolution by the city council which said that it was "rumored that arrests are being made and people placed in jail and later released without any charges preferred or any record made."

The resolution said that the police department was being "severely criticized" because of the charges.

Text of Resolution

The resolution, filed by the police committee, is as follows:

"Whereas, it is rumored that arrests are being made and people placed in jail in the city of Hope and later released without any charges being preferred or any record thereof, and

"Whereas, the police department is being severely criticized on account thereof;

"Now, Therefore, in order to shield and protect the police department against any such rumor or charges;

"Be it Further Resolved, that except of the City of Hope, Arkansas:

"That the chief of police be required to keep a permanent record of all arrests showing the name and address of the party arrested, the time of arrest, the name of officer making the arrest, the charges against the person arrested; that such record be kept in the office of the clerk of municipal court and be open at all times to the inspection of the public.

"That the chief of police be instructed not to release any person unless such person makes good and sufficient bond which is approved by the chief of police and filed with the municipal court clerk for the appearance of such person in said court on specified date.

"Except in case of transient non-resident dope addicts which may be released upon certificate of the city health officer, which certificate is to be filed by the chief of police with the clerk of the municipal court.

"Be it Further Resolved, that except in cases of drug addicts, as hereinbefore provided, charges shall be preferred against the person, or persons, arrested for the offense for which they are arrested, and such case, or cases, passed to the municipal court for such action as the court may see fit to take."

Third St. Regulation

The council Wednesday night will meet in special session to draw up an ordinance regulating parking and marketing on Third street.

Traffic on this street was discussed Tuesday night and a motion by Alderman Henry was passed, asking for the installation of a stop and go light at Main and Third.

Chief of Police Ridgill recommended to the council that additional stop signs be placed at streets leading into Third, asserting that increased tourist traffic over Highway 67 has created a dangerous situation for motorists driving into Third from other streets without stopping.

Four Hope women appeared before the council and asked a donation of $500 for the proposed erection of a Community House on the northwest corner of Garland school grounds.

They were Mrs. J. C. Carlton, Mrs. John Wellborn, Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, and Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Jr. The council referred the matter to the Board of Public Affairs without taking action.

The proposed building would be for the public and serve as a meeting place for eight women clubs of Hope.

The $500 would be the local contribution to a federal project, calling for a total expenditure of approximately $2,300.

It was reliably reported Wednesday that the Board of Public Affairs has recommended that the city contribute $2,500 for the proposed erection of a $20,000 concrete football stadium at Hope High School.

Although City Clerk T. R. Billingsley said that the board had filed no report with him on the stadium proposal, The Star's informant said that the board had made the recommendation with two provisions:

First, that the city take a lien on the stadium property, and second to take a lien on gate receipts, assuring that the city would be refunded the loan.

The council, however, has taken no official action on the stadium except to refer it to the Board of Public Affairs when the proposal was outlined by Coach Foy Hammons.

C. H. Moses Speaks at Prescott Meet

Addresses 101 Rotarians Gathered There From Six Cities

One hundred and one Rotarians from six cities gathered in the Allen hotel at Prescott Tuesday night to hear C. Hamilton Moses of Little Rock address an inter-city meeting of the Prescott Rotary club.

Mr. Moses, former Rotary district governor, was introduced by W. V. Tompkins, of Prescott, as the man who organized Rotary in the Nevada counties.

The meeting was presided over by Charles Robinson, new head of the Prescott club. Ches Stephens of Gurdon led the community singing—and the Prescott club offered the following program:

Little William Lester Gordon in songs; Little Grace Annette Gee in readings, and piano numbers by Miss Alta Jewell Bradley.

Clubs represented Tuesday night were: Prescott, Gurdon, Arkadelphia, Hope, Nashville and Stamps.

Mr. Moses' address was an inspirational discussion of the morals and governmental manners of today. Declaring that America was tremendously shaken during the panic years by men's loss of faith in one another, the speaker said:

"If you've lost faith in your fellow man then it stands to reason he has lost faith in you. Yet half of all our daily business depends upon credit—which in the last analysis is faith."

He illustrated his point with the story of a Little Rock business man who in difficult financial times refused to take bankruptcy, finally repaid a Little Rock bank $186,000—and "came through." Mr. Moses' next illustration was of a truck driver who made good on his obligation, showing the same regard for principles whether the amount of money were large or small.

"And for these personal crises," continued Mr. Moses, "government has no answer. The answer lies with ourselves."

"Our trouble today is that so many of us ask, 'What is the government going to do for me?'—when what we should really be asking is, 'What am I going to do for my home and my country?'"

He concluded by remarking that, "A man who wouldn't pay his debts didn't used to be thought much of. We are getting back to that point of view after being away from it for several years."

Debt Adjustment Meeting July 17

Hempstead Committee Will Meet at RA Office in Hope at 10 a. m.

A regular meeting of the Hempstead county farm debt adjustment committee will be held at the RA office here at 10 a. m. Friday, July 17, it was announced Wednesday by E. M. Osborn, chairman of the body.

The committee, which works on a voluntary basis under the State Agricultural Advisory Council and the Farm Debt Adjustment unit of the Resettlement Administration, brings worthy, debt-burdened farmers and their creditors together in an effort to work out new agreements and understandings that will avert the threat of foreclosure. Services of the committee are available without cost to the farmers of this county. Further details can be secured by contacting the chairman of the committee or the county Resettlement supervisor.

Lightning From Rainless Clouds Fires Forest in Wyoming, Montana

HEAT RISES TO 120

WPA Will Add 55,000 Destitute Farmers to Rolls in 5 States

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Continuance of record high temperatures Wednesday and Thursday with no substantial precipitation, was forecast Wednesday as at least 57 deaths were attributed to the heat which has been blanketing the drouth-stricken Midwest for six consecutive days.

Grain prices resumed their sensational upward march after a temporary halt.

Heavy rains broke the drouth over most sections of Saskatchewan province, Canada.

Lightning from rainless clouds sent fires roaring through the under-dry Wyoming and Montana forests as over 1,000 fighters strove almost hopelessly to stop the flames in three other areas since Sunday.

WPA to Aid
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, announced Wednesday that 55,000 destitute farmers in five Midwestern drouth-stricken states would be employed by the WPA within a week or 10 days.

120 in North Dakota
CHICAGO.—(AP)—Record breaking heat caused more than a score of deaths in the drouth-ravaged Midwest Tuesday.

An official temperature of 120 degrees at Wishek, N. D., led all marks for the 24-hour period of the heat's worst day.

Fatalities numbered 10 from the 200 degree-plus temperatures which spread from the Rocky Mountains eastward to Indiana. There were also at least 20 drowning deaths as thousands sought relief in lakes and rivers.

Iowa, Wisconsin, Kansas and North Dakota were among the states suffering from more than 100 degree heat during the day.

The mercury readings included an unofficial maximum of 118 at suburban Des Moines and Chicago's highest of the year—102 at the Municipal Airport thermometer.

From the Rocky Mountains eastward through Indiana the heat continued to break records of long standing. Bismarck's 114 degrees Monday, Terre Haute's 106, and 112 at Devil's Lake, N. D., were the hottest in the history of the weather bureaus there.

Napoleon in the latter state reported 119 for the high mark of the current heat-drouth spell Monday.

With total drouth losses estimated at around $300,000,000 the chief of the AAA Replacement Crop Section, Joseph F. Cox, in Indianapolis, said that hay and pasture were reduced in two-thirds of the states by lack of rain.

At Lincoln, Neb., regional offices of the Rural Resettlement Administration, estimated 33,000 farm families in the two Dakotas need help. It will supply emergency grants of $17.50 per month. A field trip through the territory, said Cal A. Ward, regional director, had convinced him that thousands of the drouth-burned acres "should never have been put to the plow."

Gaps to Be Paved in Highway No. 67

Association Hears Promises of Final Action Within a Year

NEWPORT, Ark.—Forecasts from two congressmen that a year would see the gaps of Highway 67 filled with concrete, foreer ending the stumbling block to bringing tourists through Arkansas, featured the first annual convention of the U. S. Highway 67 Association held here Tuesday.

More than $22,000,000 has been allocated or will be spent for good roads in Arkansas by the present administration from federal funds, Congressman John McClellan of Malvern said in his address.

Congressman Miller surprised the audience by announcing that legislation was passed during the final days of congress which he believes will end the toll bridges in Arkansas. He said that while no appropriation accompanied the measure, which he did not identify, that authorization of the toll bridge relief was provided for and that within six months or a year funds probably could be allocated for that purpose.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The sick baby or child must be suitably clothed, to provide for its temperature and to permit the necessary attention. In summer, the materials next to the skin should be thin, and the warmth of the body may be regulated by covers. In colder weather, a night dress or gown, or simple pajamas, may be worn.

In the hospital it is customary to have a typical hospital jacket, which makes fairly easy frequent examinations of the chest.

In the case of a sick child, the doctor will want to listen repeatedly to sounds of heart and lungs. Arrangements must be made so the child will not be too greatly exposed to changes of temperature during this process.

Many mothers fear bathing of the child during illness. However, a bath is of greatest importance, not only for cleanliness, but for control of temperature. When a baby is sick, it must be bathed frequently.

Sometimes, unfortunately, the baby will be so ill that it has to be bathed in bed, instead of a tub. When this is necessary, the first step is to see that the room is properly heated, that there are no drafts, and that an hour has passed since the child has had a meal.

Fresh bed clothing, towels, and wash cloth should be placed at the foot of the bed. The utensils used in washing should be on a table beside crib or bed.

When everything is ready, the bath proceeds as follows: The sick child is covered with a blanket and undressed under it. The soiled clothing is placed either in a laundry bag or on sheets of paper ready for wrapping.

A bath towel is spread under the child's head and neck, which then are washed with the wash cloth wrung out of water, and with soap if desirable. After the face, neck, ears, and upper arms are washed, they are dried with the face towel, and the bath towel is removed from under the head. It is then placed lengthwise under the patient and chest and abdomen are washed carefully.

If turning does not cause pain, the child is turned to the side, and its back is washed while the bath towel is placed lengthwise, close to the back.

Then the bath towel is spread lengthwise under each leg separately, and the legs are washed and dried. The child must be well protected by being covered with the blanket during the procedure of changing.

After the bath, the child may be rubbed with alcohol, or, if too young for this, powder may be applied generously. Then the patient is dressed under the blanket in clean sleeping garments.

If the child has been having much fever, cold cream or vaseline may be applied to the lips to overcome dryness and crusting.

Face-Saving Device For Diplomats

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD.—Harry C. Bradley, you almost automatically call him the "Rev."—has performed screen marriages for practically all the stars in Hollywood. Even more ceremonies than the Rev. Neal Dodd, who has played countless greater roles since he came here from Iowa in 1918.

It happens, though, that the Rev. Mr. Dodd is really a minister, and Mr. Bradley isn't. The latter hasn't been inside a church in 30 years, since he himself was married—to Lorena Atwood, an actress.

He says he doesn't even feel ministerial, nor does he enjoy the role.

But studios are constantly casting him as a man of the cloth, for he is pink, prim, and spectacular. Offhand he can scarcely think of a star whom he hasn't married to some other star. But he never has kissed a bride.

Once, when he was officiating at the wedding of Nancy Carroll and Edmund Lowe, she halted the proceedings right in the middle of the shot. Miss Carroll suspected a publicity stunt and had to be convinced that it wasn't a legal ceremony.

Long on Stage
Bradley was on the Broadway stage 23 years, and there became a play-acting "Reverend" when they cast him as the priest in "Abie's Irish Rose." In six years there were more than 2800 performances, and he didn't miss one of them. Members of the Catholic clergy used to come backstage to see him, sure that he had studied for the priesthood. They'd always laugh when Bradley would tell them that he was, if anything, a Presbyterian.

A real minister who doesn't play clerical roles is Gordon Hart. He always wanted to be an actor, but for 20 years he was pastor of the First Congregational church in Walla Walla, Wash.

A few months ago his wife died. Hart gave up his pulpit and came to Hollywood. Extra parts led to character roles, and now he has a contract. He plays mayors and statesmen mostly.

fortune every day if it were possible to know accurately, in advance, all about the weather. More and more outdoor sequences are being filmed, and location trips cost a lot of money.

Of course, California weather is less treacherous than most when it's merely a question of sunshine or rain. But in these days of hypersensitive film and more careful attention to lighting, the brightness of sunshine is a problem to be considered, and feared.

One day a company may have bright sun, the next day a slight haze that the eye scarcely can distinguish, but which is important to the cameras.

Since picture scenes are not shot consecutively, the amount of illumination on one shot may have to be matched exactly with a shot taken days before.

Propbet
The best the studios can do with this difficulty is to depend on Dr. Irving Krick and his meteorological staff at California Institute of Technology. Dr. Krick issues the most complicated weather chart in the world, for he not only endeavors to forecast what the weather in general will be at numerous favorite location areas within 100 miles of Hollywood, but he tells about conditions of fog, dust, and clouds.

The day is divided into two-hour periods and he calculates the intensity

Mash, Milk Aids to Egg Production

Gallon Per Day for Every 25 Hens Helps Stop Summer Slump

Feeding a laying mash or supplying at least one gallon of milk per day for each 25 hens in the flock is one of the most practical ways of keeping up egg production during the summer months, states Miss Melva Bullington, home demonstration agent.

The lack of the right kind of feed is one of the main reasons for hens stopping production during the summer months, according to S. A. Moore, extension poultryman, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. A good laying mash can be made of 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds wheat shorts, 75 pounds meat scrap, and 3 pounds salt.

There are a number of other practices, as well as providing proper feed, which may be followed to help maintain summer egg production. The laying house should be made as comfortable as possible by taking out all the windows and providing ventilation under the droppings board on the rear of the house. Better ventilation will be secured if the droppings boards are moved out several inches from the walls.

If no shade trees are available, artificial shade should be provided. This may be done by constructing frames covered with feed bags.

All hens out of condition should be culled.

Mites and lice should be controlled. Painting or spraying the roosting quarter with old oil drained out of the car will get rid of mites. To control lice, dust the hens with sodium fluoride, or use nicotine sulphate on the roosts.

The hens should be confined to the house until noon each day to get them to consume a large amount of mash. Feeding a mist mash at noon will aid in getting the hens to consume mash.

All the major studios get their data from him. He's right 90 per cent of the time. Also makes predictions for the week and the month, so that movie executives can plan their shooting schedules.

Early one morning a studio telephoned Dr. Krick and told him it had to have some fleecy white clouds that day—for an aviation picture. The scientist consulted his charts and said he was sorry, but he couldn't deliver any clouds above the studio right away, but if they were flying he could tell them where to find some.

They said all right, so he gave them careful directions. The planes, one of them a camera ship, zoomed away and caught the clouds in Oregon.

Most botanists believe the original color of flowers was green. Primeval types are green, even to this day.

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your stomach daily. If this is not done freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sick and the world looks lunk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. They merely move motion down to get at the bowels. Take those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up" again. Gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Scarcely refuse anything else.

They cost so little, but they mean so much. The fleeting kindness along one's way—A flower, a smile, a sympathetic touch, A loan to him who knew a better day, An hour spent listening with kindly ear To one who failed his happiness to find; A merry, helpful little word of cheer To those who all in body or mind. If we could only keep our vision free Of just the joys and troubles of our own, What treasure-trove we'd glean for memory, From those small deeds upon life's pathway sown.—Selected.

Hill Winner for 10th Time in Hope

Californian Throws Geo. Ligosky in Third and Deciding Fall

Frankie Hill, clever California grappler and big favorite here, took the third and deciding fall from George Ligosky to win the feature event at the South Walnut street wrestling show Tuesday night.

Hill exhibited an assortment of arm and leg holds, but used the "bouncing clam" to defeat Ligosky. The bearded Russian was unable to cope with Hill in clean grappling, turning meek soon after the first bout started.

Hill took the first fall with the "bouncing clam," a maneuver that's new to Hope fans. Ligosky won the second with a leg lock.

The party became rough in the final round and caused a more excitable spectator to turn loose a pop bottle at Ligosky. Fortunately, the bottle skidded across the ring and one was hit.

It was Hill's first appearance here in more than a year, and incidentally it marked his 10th straight victory in a Hope ring.

Harry Speedy Schaffer of East St. Louis, Ill., and Pete Baltram of New York city, split falls in the 45-minute semi-final. Neither grappler extended himself until the last 10 minutes when they staged a brief slugging contest. Schaffer was knocked through the ropes as the gong sounded.

The scheduled three-round boxing match between two local negroes did not materialize. One of the combatants failed to show up.

The crowd was estimated at 250.

There were no more long automobile rides, with Mr. R. requesting that the chauffeur step on the gas on the Ormond-Daytona beach. He still requests a short spin almost daily, but seldom takes one.

No more passing out shiny dimes and nickels or printed poems. No more Christmas and birthday parties, of which he was the life, and at which he loved to sing "My Old Kentucky Home," "Swannee River," "Old Black Joe," and "Annie Laurie."

Headed for 100!

Sort walks in the garden now give Mr. R. his only exercise. On the warmer days he sits on the lawn in a wicker rocker chair and reads or watches little Lucille Frasca, daughter of his chauffeur, at play.

Ward Madison, Mr. R.'s secretary, and Mrs. Anne Mitchell, wife of his former secretary, read to him, but only what his physicians deem it advisable for Mr. R. to hear.

Nothing is to be permitted that will excite or disturb Mr. R., or exhaust him.

3 French Women in Cabinet; No Vote

Hold Office But Are Ineligible to Vote in National Elections

PARIS.—(P)—"Mesdames les ministres," the three women who are members of Leon Blum's cabinet but cannot vote in national elections, include one scientist, one teacher and one publicist.

"The three women in the new cabinet," said the premier when the members of his government were announced, "are there as workers and not as decorations."

Undersecretary for scientific research is able Madame Irene Joliot-Curie, daughter of two winners of the Nobel prize which she herself won with her husband.

Deputies Applaud Women

Mademoiselle Suzanne Lacore, modest little retired school teacher, is undersecretary for child welfare.

The publicist is Madame Cecile Kahn Brunschwig, president of the French Union for Woman Suffrage, who was named undersecretary of state.

When the three walked with their fellow ministers to the government benches in the chamber of deputies both center and left deputies hailed the feminine invasion with applause.

At 39 Mme. Joliot-Curie is the youngest of the trio. With her husband she has spent most of her time in the Curie laboratory where they now are working on an artificial substitute for radium—the element discovered by her father and mother.

Works With Husband

Both she and her husband are socialists, but, until she entered the Blum cabinet, she found her laboratory work, combined with the job of rearing their two children, a girl of nine and a boy of four, enough.

Mlle. Lacore, tiny 61-year-old teacher, is one of France's leading authorities on child welfare. Her regular job for 33 years was teaching the communal school at Ajat in southwestern France.

She has been a socialist since 1906. Long before the war she battled for better educational and social development of French children in books and pamphlets.

Spinster "Mothers" Pupils

"I am a spinster," said Mlle. Lacore, "but in 33 years I have been 'mother' to nearly a thousand poor school children."

Me. Brunschwig traveled around France making suffrage speeches to amused men and serious women for years while her husband, Leon Brunschwig, taught philosophy at the Sor-

Array of Brushes Valuable in House

Good Assortment Is Recommended by Hempstead Demonstration Agent

A well-assorted supply of brushes is a great aid to the housekeeper, who, during the hot summer months, is interested in getting her housework done as quickly and efficiently as possible, says Miss Melva Bullington, Hempstead demonstration agent.

There are brushes to fill every need in housecleaning. Long-handled ones make it possible to whisk away cobwebs with a minimum of time and effort. There is a scrubbing brush which permits the user to stand erect. Other brushes have been designed to clean the most inaccessible places, such as the innermost parts of radiators, and the drains of the refrigerator.

Buying brushes should be a matter of careful consideration, says Mrs. Ida A. Fenion, Extension economist in household management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. The type of brush needed for various cleaning problems, and the material from which the brush is made are points to be considered.

Vegetable fibers make strong, sturdy brushes which are adaptable to scrubbing and scouring. Tampico or Palm-leaf fiber does not absorb odors and brushes made from these are especially adaptable to the cleaning of vegetables and sinks.

Bristle brushes, which offer resistance to water and cleaning compounds make good cleaning brushes. Horse-hair brushes are best for dusting purposes.

Skeleton Proves Yugoslav Legend

Tradition Said Turks Buried Monk Alive, With His Golden Cross

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia.—(P)—The finding of a skeleton by highway workers is regarded by Montenegrin peasants as corroboration of an old folk tale.

The story is that during bloody wars between Turks and Christians many years ago a monk was tortured in attempts to make him tell military secrets, and finally buried alive by the Turks. The soldiers, however, left a gold cross on his neck.

In constructing the Durmitor mountain road workmen found a skeleton, upright in the way the Turks had buried the monk, and with a chain and cross around its neck.

Peasants started a movement to erect a monument at the place.

Bridegroom: "I thee endow with all my worldly goods."

His father: "There goes his bicycle."
